THE PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES

TRANSMITTING

THE CONVENTION BETWEEN THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA AND TRINIDAD
AND TOBAGO FOR THE AVOIDANCE OF DOUBLE TAXATION, THE PREVENTION OF FISCAL EVASION WITH RESPECT TO TAXES ON INCOME, AND THE ENCOURAGEMENT OF INTERNATIONAL TRADE AND INVESTMENT, SIGNED AT PORT OF SPAIN ON JANUARY 9, 1970

LETTER OF SUBMITTAL

DEPARTMENT OF STATE,
Washington, February 27, 1970.

The PRESIDENT,
The White House.

THE PRESIDENT: I have the honor to submit to you, with a view to its transmission to the Senate for advice and consent to ratification, a convention between the United States of America and Trinidad and Tobago for the avoidance of double taxation, the prevention of fiscal evasion with respect to taxes on income, and the encouragement of international trade and development, signed at Port of Spain on January 9, 1970.

The convention was formulated as a result of technical discussions between officials of this Government and officials of the Government of Trinidad and Tobago. The Department of State and the Department of the Treasury cooperated in its negotiations. It has the approval of both Departments.

The income-tax convention of December 22, 1966 with Trinidad and Tobago (S. Exec. F, 90th Cong., 1st sess.; Treaties and Other International Acts Series 6400; 18 UST 3091) ceased to be in force at the end of 1969. It was a convention of limited scope, a temporary expedient pending the negotiation of a new comprehensive convention on the subject.

The new convention with Trinidad and Tobago follows in general the policies reflected in recent tax conventions concluded by the United States, such as those with France and the Netherlands, but departs from them in certain respects so as to reflect the status of Trinidad and Tobago as a developing country. Under the new convention, a reduction in withholding tax rates on investment income is an obligation assumed only by Trinidad and Tobago in order to reduce the aggregate level of taxes on direct investment income in Trinidad and Tobago to a level which approximates United States taxes on such income. The United States would continue to impose its tax at the statutory rate of 30 percent in order not to encourage an outflow of capital from Trinidad and Tobago to the United States. The maximum rates of Trinidad and Tobago withholding under the convention would be 25 percent on portfolio dividends, 10 percent on direct investment dividends, and 15 percent on interest. The withholding rate on royalties would be limited, on a reciprocal basis, to 15 percent. Article 12 relates to dividends. Article 13 relates to interest. Article 14 relates to royalties. Article 15 relates to income from real property, including gains derived from the sale or exchange of such property, and from royalties in respect of the operation of mines, quarries, or other natural resources. Articles 5 (Source of Income) and 16 (investment or holding companies) should be read in conjunction with those provisions.

A novel feature of the convention is a provision (Article 7) designed to remove a tax barrier to the flow of technology in a case where a resident of one of the countries transfers patents or similar property rights, technical information, and certain ancillary services to a corporation of the other country in return for its stock. Under the treaty, the taxes of both countries on the transaction may be deferred until the stock is disposed of by the company transferring the patents, etc.

Various provisions of the convention are, in general, similar to provisions in other recent bilateral tax conventions of the United States. Among such provisions are those dealing with taxation of business income, income of business visitors for personal services, income from personal services for teaching or research, certain amounts received by students or trainees, governmental salaries, private pensions and annuities, mutual cooperation and exchange of information, and nondiscrimination.

Article 1 describes the taxes to which the convention relates: in the case of the United States, the Federal income tax, but not including the personal holding company tax and accumulated earnings tax; in the case of Trinidad and Tobago, the corporation tax and the income tax. For the purposes of Article 6 (Nondiscrimination), the convention applies to taxes of every kind imposed at the national, state, and local levels.

Article 2 contains general definitions of various terms found in the convention. This is the first income-tax convention signed by the United States to contain geographic definitions of the contracting states which include their respective continental shelves. Article 3 contains general rules of taxation. The credit provisions are set forth in Article 4. Article 9 contains the definition of "permanent establishment". Article 29 sets forth a procedure by which the application of the convention may be extended to areas, to which it is not otherwise applicable, "for whose international relations" each party is responsible.

There is no provision in the convention for an investment credit or similar tax incentive to stimulate United States investment in Trinidad and Tobago. Trinidad and Tobago, while expressing strongly the view that the convention should contain such an incentive, agreed to defer consideration thereof in order to permit early signing of the convention. It has been agreed to continue discussions on this subject with a view to concluding, if possible, a supplementary protocol.

It is provided in Article 28 that the convention, after the exchange of instruments of ratification, shall have effect for taxable years beginning on or after January 1 of the year in which the exchange takes place, except that provisions regarding tax deferral for technical assistance shall have effect with respect to stock received on or after the date of signature and except that, after signature of the convention, Trinidad and Tobago is to take all steps necessary to give effect to the reduced rates of tax on dividends provided by Article 12 (Dividends) so that such provisions shall be effective from January 1, 1970, to terminate on December 31, 1970 unless the convention has by that date been ratified by both contracting states. The convention is to continue in effect indefinitely, subject to the right of either party, after five years from the date of entry into force, to give notice for termination. In the event of such notice, the convention would cease to be effective for taxable years beginning on or after January 1 following the expiration of a period of six months from the date of notice of termination.

Respectfully submitted,

WILLIAM P. ROGERS.

LETTER OF TRANSMITTAL

THE WHITE HOUSE,
Washington, March 5, 1970.

To the Senate of the United States:

With a view to receiving the advice and consent of the Senate to ratification, I transmit herewith the convention between the United States of America and Trinidad and Tobago for the avoidance of double taxation, the prevention of fiscal evasion with respect to taxes on income, and the encouragement of international trade and investment, signed at Port of Spain on January 9, 1970.

I transmit also, for the information of the Senate, the report of the Secretary of State with respect to the convention.

The convention of December 22, 1966 with Trinidad and Tobago relating to double taxation of income ceased to be in force at the end of 1969. Whereas the 1966 convention was limited in scope, the new convention is a comprehensive one which, in general, follows the pattern of bilateral income-tax conventions now in force between the United States and a number of other countries. Some of the provisions reflect the special needs of a developing country.

Among the provisions of special interest are those which relate to the taxation of dividends, interest, royalties, and income from real property and those which relate to exchanges of technical know-how for stock.

Under the new convention, only Trinidad and Tobago assumes an obligation with respect to reduction in withholding tax rates on investment income in order to eliminate a tax barrier to direct investment. The United States would continue to impose its tax at the statutory rate of 30 percent to avoid encouraging an outflow of capital to the United States from Trinidad and Tobago. The maximum rates of withholding by Trinidad and Tobago would be 25 percent on portfolio dividends, 10 percent on direct investment dividends, and 15 percent on interest. The withholding rate on royalties would be limited, on a reciprocal basis, to 15 percent.

The treaty contains a novel provision designed to remove a tax barrier to the flow of technology in a case where a resident of one country transfers patents or similar property rights, technical information, and certain ancillary services to a corporation of the other country in return for its stock. Under the treaty, the taxes of the two countries that would otherwise apply to the transaction may be deferred until disposition of the stock.

This convention is the first to contain a definition of the continental shelf for the purpose of applying the treaty rules to income earned from the exploration or exploitation of natural resources on the continental shelf.

The new convention does not contain a special United States tax incentive, such as an investment credit, to promote United States capital investment in Trinidad and Tobago. In view of the keen interest of the authorities of that country in such a provision, it has been agreed to continue discussions on the subject.

The convention has the approval of the Department of State and the Department of the Treasury.

I recommend that the Senate give early and favorable consideration to the convention.

RICHARD NIXON.

ARTICLE 3 General Rules of Taxation

1. A resident of one of the Contracting States shall be taxable by the other Contracting State only on income derived from sources within that other Contracting State. For this purpose the rules set forth in Article 5 (Source of Income) shall be applied to determine the source of income.

2. A resident of one of the Contracting States may be taxed by the other Contracting State on income taxable under paragraph 1 in accordance with the limitations set forth in this Convention. Any income to which the provisions of this Convention are not expressly applicable shall be taxable by each of the Contracting States in accordance with its own law. The provisions of this Convention shall not be construed to restrict in any manner any exclusion, exemption, deduction, credit, or other allowance now or hereafter accorded (a) by the laws of one of the Contracting States in the determination of the tax imposed by that State or (b) by any other agreement between the Contracting States.

3. Except as provided in paragraph 4, a Contracting State may tax a resident of that Contracting State (whether or not such person is also a resident of the other Contracting State), and the United States may tax its citizens, as if this Convention had not come into effect.

4. The provisions of paragraph 3 shall not affect-

- (a) The benefits conferred by a Contracting State under Articles 4 (Relief from Double Taxation), 6 (Nondiscrimination), and 7 (Tax Deferral for Technical Assistance)

(b) The benefits conferred by a Contracting State under Articles 18 (Teaching and Research), 19 (Students and Trainees), 20 (Governmental Salaries), and 21 (Rules Applicable to Personal Income Articles) upon individuals, other than

(i) citizens of that Contracting State, or,

(ii) in the case of the United States, individuals having immigrant status in the United States.

ARTICLE 4

Relief from Double Taxation

Double taxation shall be avoided in the following manner:

1. Subject to the provisions of the law of the United States regarding the allowance as a credit against United States tax of tax payable in a territory outside the United States (which shall not affect the general principle hereof), the United States shall allow to a citizen or resident as a credit against its taxes, the appropriate amount of Trinidad and Tobago tax paid and, in the case of a United States corporation owning at least 10 percent of the voting power of a corporation resident in Trinidad and Tobago, shall allow credit for the appropriate amount of Trinidad and Tobago tax paid by the corporation paying such dividend with respect to the profits out of which such dividend is paid, if the recipient of such dividend includes in its gross income for the purpose of United States tax the amount of such Trinidad and Tobago tax. For this purpose, the recipient of any dividend paid by a corporation which is resident in Trinidad and Tobago shall be considered to have paid to Trinidad and Tobago tax legally deducted from such dividend payment by the person by or through whom payment thereof is made (to the extent that it is a tax chargeable in accordance with the present Convention), if such recipient elects to include in his gross income for purposes of United States tax the amount of such Trinidad and Tobago tax. The appropriate amount of Trinidad and Tobago tax which shall be allowed as a credit under this paragraph shall be based upon the amount of Trinidad and Tobago tax paid but shall not exceed that portion of United States tax which net income from sources within Trinidad and Tobago bears to the entire net income.

2. Subject to the provisions of the law of Trinidad and Tobago regarding the allowance as a credit against Trinidad and Tobago tax of tax payable in a territory outside Trinidad and Tobago (which shall not affect the general principle hereof), the United States tax payable under the law of the United States and in accordance with the present Convention, whether directly or by deduction (excluding, in the case of a dividend, tax payable in respect of profits out of which the dividend is paid), shall be allowed as a credit against any Trinidad and Tobago tax. In addition, in the case of a dividend paid by a United States corporation to a Trinidad and Tobago corporation which controls directly or indirectly at least 10 percent of the voting power in the United States corporation, the credit shall take into account the United States tax payable by the United States corporation in respect of the profits out of which such dividend is paid. The amount of United States tax which shall be allowed as a credit under this paragraph shall be based upon the amount of United States tax paid but shall not exceed that portion of Trinidad and Tobago tax which net income from sources within the United States bears to the entire net income.

ARTICLE 5
Source of Income

For purposes of this Convention:

1. (a) Except as provided in subparagraph (b) and in paragraph 5 of Article 12 (Dividends), dividends paid by a corporation of one of the Contracting States shall be treated as income from sources within that Contracting State; and dividends paid by any other corporation shall be treated as income from sources outside that Contracting State.
(b) Dividends paid by a Trinidad and Tobago corporation shall be treated as income from sources within the United States if, for the 3-year period ending with the close of its taxable year preceding the declaration of such dividends (or for such portion of that period as the corporation has been in existence), such corporation-
 - (i) Had a permanent establishment in the United States, and
 - (ii) Derived 50 percent or more of its gross income from industrial or commercial profits effectively connected with the industrial or commercial activity engaged in through such permanent establishment,but only in an amount which bears the same ratio to such dividends as the gross income of the corporation for such period which is effectively connected with the commercial or industrial activity engaged in through such permanent establishment within the United States bears to its gross income from all sources. Notwithstanding the preceding sentence, the amount of dividends treated as income from United States sources under this subparagraph shall not exceed the net amount of money or property transferred from such permanent establishment during such period.
2. (a) Except as provided in subparagraph (b), interest paid by a Contracting State, including any local government thereof, or by a resident of that Contracting State shall be treated as income from sources within that Contracting State; and interest paid by any other person shall be treated as income from sources outside that Contracting State.
(b) Interest paid by a resident of any State with a permanent establishment in another State directly or indirectly out of the funds of such permanent establishment on indebtedness incurred for the sole use of, or on banking deposits made with, such permanent establishment shall be treated as income from sources within the State in which such permanent establishment is located.
3. Royalties paid for the use of, or the right to use, property described in paragraph 4 of Article 14 (Royalties) in a State shall be treated as income from sources within that State.
4. Income from real property and royalties from the operation of mines, quarries, or other natural resources shall be treated as income from sources within the State in which such property is located.
5. Income from the rental of tangible personal (movable) property shall be treated as income from sources within the State in which such property is located when rented.

6. Income received by an individual for his performance of personal services (either as an employee or in an independent capacity) or for furnishing the personal services of another person and income received by a corporation for furnishing the personal services of its employees or others shall be treated as income from sources within the State in which such services are performed. If services are performed partly within and partly outside a State, income from the performance or furnishing of such services shall be treated as income from sources partly within and partly outside that State. Compensation for personal services, and private pensions and annuities paid in respect of such services, performed aboard ships or aircraft operated in international traffic by a resident of a Contracting State and, in the case of the United States, registered in the United States, shall be treated as income from sources within that Contracting State, if performed by a member of the regular complement of the ship or aircraft.

7. Income from the purchase and sale of personal (movable) property shall be treated as income from sources within the State in which such property is sold.

8. Notwithstanding paragraphs 1 through 7, industrial or commercial profits which are attributable to a permanent establishment which the recipient, being a resident of one of the Contracting States, has in the other Contracting State, including income dealt within Articles 12 (Dividends), 13 (Interest), 14 (Royalties), and 15 (Income from Real Property) from rights or property which is effectively connected with such permanent establishment, shall be treated solely as income from sources within the other Contracting State. For the purposes of this Convention, to determine whether rights or property is effectively connected with a permanent establishment, the factors taken into account shall include whether the income is derived from property used in or held for use in the commercial or industrial activities carried on through such permanent establishment, or the commercial or industrial activities carried on through such permanent establishment were a material factor in the realization of the income.

9. The source of any item of income to which the provisions of this article are not expressly applicable shall be determined by each of the Contracting States in accordance with its own law.

ARTICLE 6 Nondiscrimination

1. A national of one of the Contracting States who is a resident of the other Contracting State shall not be subjected in that other Contracting State to more burdensome taxes than is a national of that other Contracting State who is a resident thereof.

2. A national or corporation of one of the Contracting States which has a permanent establishment in the other Contracting State shall not be subjected in that other Contracting State to more burdensome taxes than is a national or corporation of that other Contracting State. This paragraph shall not be construed-

(a) To require a Contracting State to grant to nationals of the other Contracting State who are not residents of the first-mentioned Contracting State any personal allowances or deductions which are by its law available only to residents of the first-mentioned Contracting State,

(b) To prevent the application of paragraph 5 of Article 12 (Dividends) relating to tax on branch profits, or

(c) To prevent the United States from imposing a tax burden comparable to that referred to in subparagraph (b) on the income of a permanent establishment maintained by a resident of Trinidad and Tobago in the United States.

3. A corporation of one of the Contracting States, the capital of which is wholly or partly owned by one or more nationals or corporations of the other Contracting State, shall not be subjected in the first-mentioned Contracting State to more burdensome taxes than is a corporation of that Contracting State.

ARTICLE 7

Tax Deferral for Technical Assistance (DELETED)

1. If, in accordance with the laws of the Contracting States regulating foreign investment, a resident of one of the Contracting States transfers to a corporation of the other Contracting State for use in connection with a trade or business actively conducted by such corporation in that other Contracting State any-

(a) Patent, invention, model, design, secret formula or process, or similar property right, or

(b) Information concerning industrial, commercial, or scientific knowledge, experience, or skill, or provides technical, managerial, engineering, architectural, scientific, skilled, industrial, commercial, or like services which are ancillary and subsidiary to the transfer of the property rights referred to in (a) or information referred to in (b), and if in consideration thereof such resident receives from the corporation its stock, such resident may elect not to include in income for purposes of United States tax and Trinidad and Tobago tax any amount otherwise includible by reason of the receipt of such stock. In that event, otherwise deductible expenses incurred in the transaction shall not be currently deducted to the extent that they are allocable to amounts so excluded from income. If the stock received is thereafter disposed of, the amount excluded (or, if such stock is sold or exchanged for less than such amount, the amount received upon the sale or exchange) shall then be included in income in the manner in which it would have been included upon receipt of such stock. The deductions disallowed shall be allowed upon a disposition of the stock received and any gain upon such disposition shall be determined as if such amount had been included in income, and such deductions allowed, upon receipt of such stock.

2. (a) With respect to United States tax, the provisions of this article shall be subject to such regulations as are prescribed by the Secretary of the Treasury or his delegate to effectuate the provisions of this article and to further define and determine the terms, conditions, and amounts referred to herein.

(b) With respect to Trinidad and Tobago tax, the provisions of this article shall be subject to such regulations as are prescribed by the Minister of Finance or his authorized representative to effectuate the provisions of this article and to further define and determine the terms, conditions, and amounts referred to herein. In particular, the Minister of Finance or his authorized representative may by regulations prescribe standards for the determination of whether the services referred to in paragraph 1 are ancillary and subsidiary to the property rights or information referred to in such paragraph.

(c) To the extent provided by applicable regulations, a portion of any stock to which this article applies may be required to be deposited with a designated bank or other depository for the purpose of assuring collection of the taxes payable under this article upon disposition of the stock.

ARTICLE 8 Business Profits

1. Industrial or commercial profits of a resident of one of the Contracting States shall be taxable only in that Contracting State unless such resident is engaged in industrial or commercial activity through a permanent establishment in the other Contracting State. If such a resident of one of the Contracting States is so engaged, tax may be imposed by that other Contracting State on the industrial or commercial profits of that resident but only on so much of such profits as are attributable to the permanent establishment in that other Contracting State.

2. Where a resident of one of the Contracting States engages in industrial or commercial activity in the other Contracting State through a permanent establishment situated therein, there shall be attributed to that permanent establishment the industrial or commercial profits which it might be expected to derive in that other Contracting State if it were an independent entity engaged in the same or similar activities under the same or similar conditions and dealing at arm's length with the resident of which it is a permanent establishment.

3. In the determination of the industrial or commercial profits of a permanent establishment there shall be allowed as deductions, expenses wherever incurred, which are reasonably connected with such profits, including executive and general administrative expenses.

4. No profits shall be deemed to be derived merely by reason of the purchase of goods or merchandise by a permanent establishment, or by the resident of which it is a permanent establishment, for the account of that resident.

5. For the purposes of the preceding paragraphs, the profits to be attributed to a permanent establishment shall be determined by the same method year by year unless there is good and sufficient reason to the contrary.

6. For purposes of this article, the term "industrial or commercial profits" means income derived from the active conduct of a trade or business. It includes profits from manufacturing, mercantile, agricultural, fishing, transportation, communication, or extractive activities, from the rental of tangible personal (movable) property, from the furnishing by an individual of the personal services of another person and from the furnishing by a corporation of the personal services of its employees. It includes income dealt within Article 12 (Dividends), Article 13 (Interest), Article 14 (Royalties), and Article 15 (Income from Real Property), but only if the right or property giving rise to the dividends, interest, royalties, or income from real property is effectively connected with a permanent establishment which the recipient, being a resident of one Contracting State, has in the other Contracting State. It does not include insurance premiums or income received by an individual for his performance of personal services (either as an employee or in an independent capacity); nor does it include rentals from motion picture films or films or tapes for radio or television broadcasting.

ARTICLE 9 Definition of Permanent Establishment

For purposes of this Convention-

1. The term "permanent establishment" means a fixed place of business through which a resident of one of the Contracting States engages in industrial or commercial activity.
2. The term "a fixed place of business" includes, but is not limited to, a seat of management, an office, a store or other sales outlet; a workshop, a factory, a warehouse, a mine, a quarry, or other place of extraction of natural resources, or a building, construction, or installation project.
3. Notwithstanding paragraphs 1 and 2, a permanent establishment shall not include a fixed place of business used only for one or more of the following activities:
 - (a) The processing by another person under arrangements or conditions which are or would be made between independent persons, of goods or merchandise belonging to the resident;
 - (b) The purchase, under arrangements or conditions which are or would be made between independent persons, of goods or merchandise for the account of the resident;
 - (c) The storage and/or delivery of goods belonging to the resident (other than goods or merchandise held for sale by such resident in a store or other sales outlet)
 - (d) The collection of information for the resident;
 - (e) Advertising, the conduct of scientific research, the display of goods or merchandise, or the supply of information, if such activities have a preparatory or auxiliary character in the trade or business of the resident;
 - (f) Construction, assembly, or installation projects if the fixed place of business is used for such purpose for less than 6-months.
4. Even if a resident of one of the Contracting States does not have a permanent establishment in the other Contracting State under paragraphs 1 through 3, nevertheless it shall be deemed to have a permanent establishment in that other Contracting State if it-
 - (a) Engages in industrial or commercial activity in that other Contracting State through a person who

(i) Has authority to conclude contracts in the name of that resident and habitually exercises that authority in that other Contracting State, unless the exercise of the authority is limited to the purchase of goods or merchandise for the account of the resident; or

(ii) Maintains in that other Contracting State a stock of goods or merchandise belonging to that resident from which he regularly fills orders or makes deliveries.

(b) Maintains equipment or machinery for rental or other purposes within that other Contracting State for a period of 6-months or more; or

(c) Sells in that other Contracting State goods or merchandise which either-

(i) Were subjected to substantial processing in that Contracting State (whether or not purchased in that Contracting State), or

(ii) Were purchased in that Contracting State and not subjected to substantial processing outside that Contracting State.

5. 6. The fact that a resident of one of the Contracting States is a related person with respect to

(a) a resident of the other Contracting State or

7. If a resident of one of the Contracting States has a permanent establishment in that other Contracting State at any time during the taxable year, it shall be considered to have a permanent establishment in that other Contracting State for the entire taxable year.

2. A person is related to another person if either person owns or controls directly or indirectly the other, or if any third persons own or control directly or indirectly both. 1. The tax imposed by Trinidad and Tobago on dividends derived from sources within Trinidad and Tobago by a resident of the United States shall not exceed-

- (a) Twenty-five percent of the gross amount actually distributed; or
- (b) When the recipient is a corporation, 10 percent of the gross amount actually distributed if-

- (i) During the part of the paying corporation's taxable year which precedes the date of payment of the dividend and during the whole of its prior taxable year (if any), at least 10 percent of the outstanding shares of the voting stock of the paying corporation was owned by the recipient corporation, and

2. 5. Notwithstanding the provisions of paragraphs 2 and 4, where a corporation of one of the Contracting States has a permanent establishment in the other Contracting State and derives profits or income which is effectively connected with that permanent establishment, any remittance of such profits or income by that permanent establishment may be taxed as a distribution in accordance with the law of the other Contracting State, but the rate so charged shall not exceed 10 percent.

4. Interest paid by a corporation of one of the Contracting States to a person other than a resident or corporation of the other Contracting State (and, in the case of interest paid by a Trinidad and Tobago corporation, other than to a citizen of the United States) shall be exempt from tax by that other Contracting State, unless such interest is treated as income from sources within that other Contracting State under paragraph 2(b) or 8 of Article 5.

5. Any provision of Trinidad and Tobago law having the effect of requiring interest paid to be treated as a distribution by the Trinidad and Tobago corporation shall apply to interest paid to a resident of the United States only to the extent that the taxpayer is unable to demonstrate to the satisfaction of the taxing authorities of Trinidad and Tobago that the investment giving rise to the interest (and its denomination as indebtedness) did not have as its purpose the avoidance of Trinidad and Tobago tax.

4. For the purposes of this article, the term "royalties" means any royalties, rentals, or other amounts paid as consideration for the use of, or the right to use:

5. Where any royalty paid by a person to any related person exceeds a fair and reasonable consideration in respect of the rights or property for which it is paid, the provisions of paragraphs 1 and 2 shall apply only to so much of the royalty as represents such fair and reasonable consideration; and the excess payment shall be characterized and taxed according to the laws of each Contracting State, including the provisions of this Convention where applicable.

None of the provisions of this Convention shall apply to any areas in the absence of such acceptance and exchange of instruments of ratification in respect of that area.

2. At any time after the date of entry into force of an extension under paragraph 1, either of the Contracting States may, by 6-months' prior written notice of termination given to the other Contracting State through diplomatic channels, terminate the application of this Convention to any area to which it has been extended under paragraph 1, and in such event this Convention shall cease to apply, for taxable years beginning on or after the first day of January next following the expiration of the 6-month period, to the area or areas named therein, but without affecting its continued application to the United States, Trinidad and Tobago, or to any other area to which it has been extended under paragraph 1.

3. In the application of this Convention in relation to any area to which it is extended by notification by the United States or Trinidad and Tobago, reference to the "United States" or "Trinidad and Tobago", as the case may be, shall be construed as referring to that area.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF the undersigned have signed this Convention.

DONE in duplicate at Port of Spain this ninth day of January, 1970.

For the Government of the United States of America:

(s) J. Fife Symington Jr.,
Ambassador Extraordinary and Plenipotentiary

For the Government of Trinidad and Tobago:

(s) Eric Williams,
Prime Minister and Minister of Finance

The Senate of the United States of America by its resolution of November 25, 1970, two-thirds of the Senators present concurring therein, gave its advice and consent to the ratification of the convention, subject to a reservation reading:

"The Government of the United States does not accept Article 7 of the Convention relating to tax deferral for technical assistance.";

After acceptance of that reservation by the Government of Trinidad and Tobago, the convention was duly ratified by the President of the United States of America on December 24, in pursuance of the advice and consent of the Senate and subject to the reservation, and the convention was duly ratified on the part of Trinidad and Tobago;

It is provided in Article 28 of the convention that the convention shall be brought into force by the exchange of instruments of ratification; and

The instruments of ratification of the convention were duly exchanged at Port of Spain on December 30, 1970;

NOW, THEREFORE, I Richard Nixon, President of the United States of America, proclaim and make public the convention of January 9, 1970 between the United States of America and Trinidad and Tobago to the end that it shall be observed and fulfilled with good faith on and after December 30, 1970, by the United States of America and by the citizens of the United States of America and all other persons subject to the jurisdiction thereof, subject to the reservation set forth in the said resolution of the Senate.

IN TESTIMONY WHEREOF, I have signed this proclamation and caused the Seal of the United States of America to be affixed.

As recited in the ratification on the part of the United States of America, the Senate of the United States of America, in its resolution of November 25, 1970, advising and consenting to the ratification of the Convention, expressed a certain reservation with respect thereto, as follows:

Accordingly, it is understood by the two Governments that the Convention, upon entry into force, is modified in accordance with the said reservation, so that, in effect, Article 7 of the Convention is deemed to be deleted.
