Dear

This is in response to your request dated September 12, 2005 as supplemented by correspondence dated February 7, 2006, in which you request a waiver of the 60-day rollover requirement contained in section 408(d)(3) of the Internal Revenue Code (the "Code").

The following facts and representations have been submitted under penalty of perjury in support of the ruling requested

You represent that you received a distribution from IRA X totaling Amount C. You assert that your failure to accomplish a rollover within the 60-day period prescribed by section 408(d)(3) was due to a miscommunication or misunderstanding with company A as well as a medical condition which impaired your ability to accomplish a timely rollover.

You maintained IRA X with Company A. On Date M, 2004, you requested that Company A distribute Amount C from IRA X, with such funds being wired to Bank B. You state that you requested the distribution with the intention of using the funds to secure the purchase of a new home. You state that you had not sold your existing residence at the time the new home was purchased and needed the funds from IRA X for a limited time period to cover the purchase of the new home. The funds were available for you on Date N, 2004.

You maintain that during the 60 day rollover period you were under significant emotional stress due to a fear that recurrence of a cancer would occur. You also state that "you had it in [your] mind that the time frame you were working under was 90 days", and that you believed (but were not sure) that someone at Company A may have informed you that you had 90 days to complete the rollover. Approximately three days after the 60 day period expired, you transferred Amount D into IRA X, believing that you made the deposit within 60 days. However, when your bookkeeper was preparing your returns, she informed you had received a 1099-R and that Amount C was taxable.

Based on the facts and representations, you request a ruling that the Internal Revenue Service waive the 60 day rollover requirement, with respect to Amount D, contained in section 408(d)(3) of the Code in this instance.

Section 408(d)(1) of the Code provides that, except as otherwise provided in section 408(d), any amount paid or distributed out of an IRA shall be included in gross income by the payee or distributee, as the case may be, in the manner provided under section 72 of the Code.

Section 408(d)(3) of the Code defines, and provides the rules applicable to IRA rollovers.

Section 408(d)(3)(A) of the Code provides that section 408(d)(1) of the Code does not apply to any amount paid or distributed out of an IRA to the individual for whose benefit the IRA is maintained if

(i) the entire amount received (including money and any other property) is paid into an IRA for the benefit of such individual not later than the 60th day after the day on which the individual receives the payment or distribution; or

(ii) the entire amount received (including money and any other property) is paid into an eligible retirement plan (other than an IRA) for the benefit of such individual not later than the 60th day after the date on which the payment or distribution is received, except that the maximum amount which may be paid into such plan may not exceed the portion of the amount received which is includible in gross income (determined without regard to section 408(d)(3)).

Section 408(d)(3)(B) of the Code provides that section 408(d)(3) does not apply to any amount described in section 408(d)(3)(A)(i) received by an individual from an IRA if at any time during the 1-year period ending on the day of such receipt such individual received any other amount described in section 408(d)(3)(A)(i) from an IRA which was not includible in gross income because of the application of section 408(d)(3).

Section 408(d)(3)(D) of the Code provides a similar 60-day rollover period for partial rollovers.

Section 408(d)(3)(I) of the Code provides that the Secretary may waive the 60-day requirement under sections 408(d)(3)(A) and 408(d)(3)(D) of the Code where the failure to waive such requirement would be against equity or good conscience, including casualty, disaster, or other events beyond the reasonable control of the individual subject to such requirement. Only distributions that occurred after December 31, 2001, are eligible for the waiver under section 408(d)(3)(I) of the Code.

Rev. Proc. 2003-16, 2003-4 I.R.B. 359 (January 27, 2003) provides that in determining whether to grant a waiver of the 60-day rollover requirement pursuant to section 408(d)(3)(I), the Service will consider all relevant facts and circumstances, including: (1) errors committed by a financial institution; (2) inability to complete a rollover due to death, disability, hospitalization, incarceration, restrictions imposed by a foreign country or postal error, (3) the use of the amount distributed (for example, in the case of payment by check, whether the check was cashed); and (4) the time elapsed since the distribution occurred.

It appears from the facts that you used the funds from your IRA distribution to purchase a home in a transaction that amounts to a short term interest free loan. The Committee Report describing legislative intent indicates that the Congress enacted the rollover provisions to allow portability between eligible plans including IRAs. Using a distribution as a short term loan to cover personal expenses is not consistent with the intent of Congress to allow portability between eligible plans. The information presented does not demonstrate circumstances that would justify a waiver of the 60-day rollover period pursuant to section 408(d)(3)(I) of the Code.

Therefore, pursuant to section 408(d)(3)(I) of the Code, the Service declines to waive the 60-day rollover requirement with respect to the distribution of Amount A. Thus, Amount A will not be considered a valid rollover because the 60-day requirement under section 408(d)(3) of the Code with respect to such contribution will not be satisfied.
